Abstract

The effects of Globalization on the Arab national state sovereignty.

Hussein madadha
Mu'tah University, 2008

This study aimed to clarify the relationship between the Globalization with its tools and different consequences and its effects on Arab national state sovereignty, in order to predict the future of state sovereignty under Globalization.

The problem of the study:

Is to study the range of effects of Globalization with its tools and different consequences on the Arab national state sovereignty and to study the changes, occurred accordingly in most countries particularly the Arab countries.

Importance of the study: trying to found a solution for the problems of the study.

Hypothesis of the study:

Ho: there is a positive relationship between the Globalization and the sovereignty of Arab national state.

H1: there is a negative relationship between the Globalization and the sovereignty of Arab national state.

Period of study: (1990 – 2008).

Scope of study: Arab homeland.

Study methodology: in order to test the effects of all the variables taken into considerations, the theory of external decisions and the system approach has been taken by the researcher and applied on this study.

The results of the study:

1- The study proved the Ho hypothesis.
2- The Globalization contains the good and the evil together just as a food we have taken, which might be evil if it exceeds extremely the need.

Recommendations of the study

1- Spreading the awareness among Arab masses to get the positive benefits from the globalization, and to avoid its negative.
2- Appeal for Arab economic conglomeration.
3- Unite the legislations to serve the Arab interests.
4- Stop the foreign interference in Arab issues.
5- Coherence of Arab countries with each other.
